NOW ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS

Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Shorenstein APARC postdoctoral fellowship supports two scholars undertaking research on contemporary political, economic, or social change in the Asia-Pacific region, or topics in international relations and international political economy. Fellows are required to be in residence for the 10-month appointment, present their research findings, and participate in the Center’s publishing program.

Developing Asia Health Policy Fellowship

The Developing Asia Health Policy Fellowship is a collaborative program with the Asia-Pacific Observatory on Health Systems and Policy (APO) that supports a scholar undertaking research on contemporary health or healthcare policy of relevance to the Asia-Pacific region. The fellow is required to be in residence for the 9-12-month appointment, present their research findings, and complete two papers for publication by the APO.

APPLICATION OPENING SOON

Lee Kong Chian NUS-Stanford Distinguished Fellowship on Southeast Asia

The Lee Kong Chian NUS-Stanford Distinguished Fellowship supports a scholar undertaking research on contemporary Southeast Asia. The fellow spends one month at the National University of Singapore (NUS) and 1-3 months at Stanford, conducting research and participating in related workshops on campus. Candidates with backgrounds in the social sciences and humanities are encouraged to apply, and can be of any nationality or seniority. More information available at: http://stanford.io/1zbW93U

Pantech Fellowship on Korean Affairs for Mid-Career Professionals

The Pantech Fellowship brings leading professionals from Asia to Stanford, who currently work in the public or private sector, to assist with Korea-related research projects at Shorenstein APARC. The fellow is expected to be in residence for the 3-9 month fellowship and to produce a working paper or book related to Korea (both North and South). The aim of the fellowship is to enhance the fellow's ability to engage and resolve issues related to the Korean Peninsula. More information available at: http://stanford.io/tzV8yIO

Koret Fellowship in U.S.-Korea Relations

The Koret Fellowship brings professionals from Asia and the United States to Stanford to study U.S.-Korea relations. The fellow conducts original research on the U.S.-Korea relationship, with an emphasis on contemporary relations. The aim of the fellowship is to foster greater understanding and closer ties between the two nations. A major conference is held each year in conjunction with the fellowship program, the fellow plays a leading role in organizing the event and delivers a keynote speech at the event. More information available at: http://stanford.io/tBh2BbV

Postdoctoral Fellowship in Asia Health Policy

The postdoctoral fellowship supports a scholar undertaking research on contemporary health or healthcare in two or more countries in the Asia-Pacific region with a focus on social and economic implications of demographic change. The fellow is required to be in residence for the 10-month appointment, present their research findings, and publish a working paper for Shorenstein APARC’s Asia Health Policy Program working paper series. More information available at: http://stanford.io/tBh2BbV